Forecast for Wednesday 08 Nov 2023

Weather: Mostly dry through the early hours with perhaps the odd shower, rain then spreading in from the west, accompanied by strong winds, turning heavier by dawn. The rain and winds will ease and then clear to the east by mid-morning. Largely dry and bright behind with some good sunny spells. Showers developing later in the evening, becoming heavier and more frequent.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 20-30% improving to 80-90% from mid-morning.

Low cloud and visibility: Scattered cloud base 500-700m in association with any early showers, becoming broken as the rain pushes in, clearing around mid-morning. Scattered cloud base 600-800m in association with showers during the evening. Visibility moderate in rain or showers, otherwise good.
